We are driven by our own self-interest. Even if you are thinking about someone else, what you're doing should be motivated by what you believe is in their best interest. It turns out that self-interest is not the only way to look at life. A new study suggests that the best way to look at and help others is through empathy, or more precisely, the capacity to understand another person's feelings.Conferencing is a method to allow two or more individuals to hold a conference via a communication network. Examples of communication networks where conferencing may be used include enterprise conferencing systems. An enterprise conferencing system may be used to allow a user to share desktop information, such as presentations, drawings, or any other type of computer readable material, and f678ea9f9e
